Ford Honored By Shoah Foundation

University of Southern California Shoah Foundation founder and filmmaker Steven Spielberg congratulates Bill Ford Jr., executive chairman of Ford Motor Company, who was named an Ambassador for Humanity at the Shoah Foundation's annual dinner Sept. 10 at the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn.

Ford was nominated by Detroit's Mickey Shapiro, a foundation executive committee member, who brought the gala to Detroit, where more than 700 participants were greeted with an A-list of celebrities including actors Steve Carell and Halle Berry, and singer-songwriter James Taylor.

The true highlight of the evening, however, was the announcement of the $180,000 donation by Ford Motor Company Fund to expand the Shoah Foundation's iWitness program in Michigan and to sponsor its iWitness Video Challenge for two years.

iWitness is an educational program that uses a website with more than 1,500 video testimonies from Holocaust survivors, liberators, rescuers and others collected by the Shoah Foundation to connect today's students to the grit, determination and resilience of those in the videos, with the idea that the students can find the same qualities in themselves.

Michigan Daily Marks 125 Years With Essay Book

At a time when daily print newspapers across the country are failing, the Michigan Daily continues to thrive. Operated by students of the University of Michigan, the paper was founded in 1890 and covers national and international news topics ranging from politics to sports to entertainment.

Stephanie Steinberg

The Daily has been a vital part of the college experience for countless U-M students, none more so than those who staffed the paper as editors, writers and photographers over the years. Many of these Daily alumni are now award-winning journalists who work for premier news outlets in the world.

In the Name of Editorial Freedom, titled after the paper's longstanding masthead, compiles original essays by some of the best-known Daily alumni about their time on staff.

For example, Dan Okrent, first public editor of the New York Times and a Detroit Cass Tech graduate, discusses traveling with a cohort of Daily reporters to cover the explosive 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago. Rebecca Blumenstein, deputy editor-in-chief of the Wall Street Journal and author Alan Paul talk about the intensity of the Daily newsroom and the lasting relationships it forged.

The essays offer a glimpse of the Daily's role covering historic events and how those stories molded the lives of the students who reported them.

The book was edited by Stephanie Steinberg, who also wrote its introduction. Steinberg, 25, grew up in Farmington Hills, is a Temple Shir Shalom member and attended North Farmington High School. She also was a founding member of the JN's Teen2Teen staff. Steinberg was a Daily reporter and news editor from 2008-10 and editor-in-chief in 2011. She is now an editor at U.S. News & World Report.

As part of the 125th anniversary of the Daily, a book signing will be held from 6-8 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 24, at the M-Den, 303 S. State St., Ann Arbor.

Among essayists expected to attend are Laura Berman, a longtime columnist at the Detroit News, and Mark Snyder of the Detroit Free Press, who has been covering U-M sports for a decade.

Steinberg also will discuss the book at the local authors' talk at the JCC Book Fair Nov. 8. □
